5th Shocking Video Catches Planned Parenthood Official Selling “Fully Intact” Aborted Babies

The video, which follows Senate Democrats defeating a bill to de-fund Planned Parenthood, makes it appear the Planned Parenthood abortion business may be selling the “fully intact” bodies of unborn babies purposefully born alive and left to die.

Planned Parenthood could be breaking the federal law known as the Born Alive Infants Protection Act that requires abortion clinics, hospitals and other places that do abortions to provide appropriate medical care for a baby born alive after a failed abortion or purposefully birthed to “let die.”

At one point in the video, Planned Parenthood staff show off the body of a 20-week old twin baby aborted and sold for parts:

A total of 12 states have already launched an investigation including South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Kansas, Missouri, Arizona, Indiana, Ohio, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana.

Note: ABC’s Good Morning America, a two hour-long program, on August 4 completely ignored the Senate’s vote on Planned Parenthood, yet devoted 18 minutes of air time to boy band One Direction. Only CBS This Morning bothered with the Republican effort to defund the abortion group, allowing a meager 25 seconds. LifeNews.com 8/4/15

Supreme Court Upholds Controversial Experimental Cocktail for Death-Row Inmates

Lethal injection narrowly missed becoming de facto unconstitutional after the U.S. Supreme Court upheld states’ use of a drug involved in several botched executions, saying it did not meet the threshold of “cruel and unusual punishment.”

In a 5-4 decision released June 29, the high court ruled against a group of death-row inmates who had challenged the state of Oklahoma’s use of the experimental sedative midazolam as inadequate for guaranteeing a painless execution. The inmates alleged this was a violation of the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

At the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, Anthony Granado, policy adviser for the Office of Domestic Social Development, argued that capital punishment must end and that the court’s decision did not contribute to “the building of a culture of life in our nation.” National Catholic Register 6/30/15

Montana man inspired by same-sex marriage ruling requests right to wed two wives

Nathan Collier said he was inspired by the recent Supreme Court decision that made marriage equal. He said he was particularly struck by the words of dissenting Chief John Roberts who claimed giving gay couples the right to marry might inspire polygamy.

And so this week, Mr Collier and his two wives, Victoria and Christine, entered a courthouse in Billings, Montana, and sought an to legalize the trio’s polygamous union.

“Right now we’re waiting for an answer,” Mr Collier told The Independent. “I have two wives because I love two women and I want my second wife to have the same legal rights and protection as my first.

”The practice of bigamy - holding multiple marriage licences - is outlawed in all 50 of the US states, Montana among them. But Mr Collier said he planned to sue if his application was denied.

Where Do the Body Parts of Aborted Babies End Up? Scientists Transplant Their Brain Tissue Into Mice

The Scientist recently ran commentary by John D. Loike questioning the ethics of transplanting human brains cells into other species. The piece entitled ,”When Does a Smart Mouse Become Human?” begins describing the research at the University of Rochester where mice were injected with glial cells from human fetuses.

What Loike does not discuss is ethical implications of the source of the human brain cells used in this research. The paper in Journal of Neuroscience clearly states that the glial cells came from second trimester abortions:

Top Unions Send Hundreds of Thousands in Donations to Planned Parenthood Abortion Biz

Unions are donating money to Planned Parenthood, and members who object are often unable to hold their unions accountable. According to a search of union records on the Department of Labor's website, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the Service Employees International Union and United Food and Commercial Workers gave a combined $435,000 to Planned Parenthood last year. ## Schools Implant IUDs in Girls as Young as 6th Grade Without Their Parents Knowing

The IUD is known as a long acting reversible contraception, and may even act as an abortifacient. Chief Sealth International, a public high school, began offering the devices in 2010, made possible by a Medicaid program known as Take Charge and a non-profit, Neighborcare. Students can receive the device or other method free of cost and without their parent's insurance. And while it's lauded that the contraception is confidential, how can it be beneficial for a parent-child relationship when the parents don't even know the devices or medication their daughter is using?

As it turns out, Chief Sealth isn't the only school in Seattle doing this. As CNS News reports, more schools are fitting young girls — as young as 6th grade — with the devices and doing so without their parents knowing. School-based health clinics in at least 13 Seattle-area public high schools and middle schools offer long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARCs), including IUDs and hormonal implants, to students in sixth-grade and above at no cost, according to Washington State officials.

All parents ought to take a look at the health policies of their young daughters' schools to find out if a similar program is in place where you live.

Supreme Court Protects Pennsylvania Charities from HHS Mandate

The U.S. Supreme Court has issued an order protecting a group of Pennsylvania religious institutions from being required by the federal contraception mandate to violate their faith.

The June 29 order stays an earlier ruling against the religious organizations, while the case moves forward in the courts.

New Briefs from American Family Association of PA:

Pittsburgh Public School Board planned to accept a government grant to have Planned Parenthood bring their controversial sex education program -based on the book It's Perfectly Normal--to middle schools. After an outcry from the public, it was defeated.

The Girl Scouts of Western Washington received a $100,000 donation that could send 500 girls to camp. However, the stipulation was that the money not be used for "transgender girls" (little boys). The GSA promptly returned the money to the donor!

The ACLU has stated that while the organization supported the Religious Freedom Restoration Act when it passed in 1993, "we can no longer support the law in its current form" because "it is now often used as a sword to discriminate against women, gay and transgender people and others." 7/4/15

The National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America voted 45-12 to allow openly homosexual adults to be troop leaders. There is an exception for troops sponsored by religious organizations. Homosexual activists have said they will fight to have this removed. 7/31/15
